We believe our responsibility within Texas Christian University is to prioritize academics while maintaining campus involvement and leadership.

We believe that our responsibility to the Professional Communities in which we work is to become ethical leaders with a global perspective and a commitment to enact positive change.

We believe our responsibility within the Greater Community in which we live is to devote our time and talents to serving the community.

Dr. Rob Rhodes Learning Mantra

The Learning Mantra was developed by a group of Neeley Fellows to honor a faculty member who embodied a passion for learning and inspired his students to do so as well. The intent behind the Learning Mantra is to provide inspiration and direction to our students in terms of how they think about and approach learning.

Learning to Be Wrong Willingly,
Learning to Succeed Humbly,
Learning to Ask Questions Thoughtfully,
Learning to Value Relationships,
Learning to Live with Integrity,
“and just maybe, you’ll not just learn to change the world, but you will actually change it, one small step at a time.”
